A story is told of a young may of care talent, but inherited tendency to drink, who had been as carnest laborer for the cause of temperance He had stiven to banish the traffic s a protection to himself as well as his fellows, who, like him, were easily subject to temptation. At last he fell under the awful power of drink, and died of deliring tremens. Just a short time before his death he became calm and rational To his pastor he said: "You know low it has been with me. I have tried to be sober, and to live a Chris tinn life. I have failed; my appetite was too strong, and the temptation was too great. There is no hope for me now. I am dying and going to hell, but I have one request to make of you.
